Wirral Council's vision is to work closely with its partners to ensure that everyone living, visiting and working in the Borough will be treated fairly and with respect regardless of their ethnicity, gender, age, disability, sexual orientation, religion or faith.

2. School Context

Raeburn Primary School is located in Bromborough, Wirral.

The vast majority of staff and pupils are white British.

There is a very small minority of pupils who have English as an additional language (0.7%). The population of the school is not diverse, with the vast majority of pupils having Christian religion, other religious beliefs followed by families are none, Muslim, Jehovah Witness.

Attainment of pupils is broadly in line or above those Nationally at all ages.

3. Ethos, Attitude and Environment

For example:

Equality of opportunity at this school is about providing equality and excellence for all in order to promote the highest possible standards of achievement. Equality of opportunity applies to all members of the school community – pupils, staff, governors, parents and community members.

It is based on the following core values and ethos as expressed in the school's mission statement 'Forward Together'

These aims are designed to ensure that the school meets the needs of all, taking account of ethnicity, gender, age, disability, sexual orientation, religion or belief.

This school is committed to the Equality Agenda, and we intend to achieve equality of opportunity by removing direct and indirect discrimination wherever it exists.

4. Using the National Curriculum

Within school the issue of equality is an integral part of the whole curriculum (see Appendix D).

The PSHE framework for teaching outlines which subjects should be taught at different key stages.

KS1: Different types of teasing and bullying; bullying is wrong; how to get help with bullying.

KS2: Awareness of the nature and consequences of anti-social and aggressive behaviour, such as bullying and racism; how to recognise and challenge stereotypes.

5. Legislative Context

This school is committed to ensuring that the work it does is firmly underpinned by all of the current legislation. The legal framework is viewed as the starting point towards building a culture that values equality and diversity by recognising and appreciating individual needs and differences. This Policy Statement is relevant to the developing and changing circumstances in our community and the Borough of Wirral.

The legislative framework for this Policy Statement is as follows:-

- Equal Pay Act 1970, 1975, Amendment 1984

Ethnicity

The Race Relations Act 1976, as amended by the Race Relations (Amendment) Act 2000, makes it unlawful to discriminate directly or indirectly against someone on racial grounds. (under the Act, 'racial grounds' means by reason of race, colour, nationality, or ethnic or national origins.)

Definitions are:

Direct racial discrimination:

It is unlawful for an employer to treat an employee or potential employee less favourably on the grounds of their race, ethnicity or national identity. This is also the case for the provision of services. However, in some cases it is possible to undertake positive action to address under-representation in the workforce.

Indirect racial discrimination:

In employment terms, this arises where a requirement or condition is applied to all employees, but is such that a proportion of one group can or cannot comply with it and it cannot be shown to be justifiable on other discriminatory grounds (unless this is demonstrated to be a genuine occupational qualification as defined by the Commission for Racial Equality – (CRE).

Racist Incident:

A racist incident is any incident that is perceived to be racist by the victim or any other person (McPherson Report).

Institutional racism:

The collective failure of an organisation to provide an appropriate and professional service to people because of their colour, culture or ethnic origin. It can be seen or detected in processes, attitudes and behaviour which amount to discrimination through unwitting prejudice, ignorance, thoughtlessness and racist stereotyping which disadvantages people of a particular cultural or ethnic origin.

The General Duty

The Race Relations (Amendment) Act 2000 places a general duty on this school to:-

- eliminate unlawful racial discrimination
- promote equality of opportunity, and
- promote good race relations between people of different racial groups.

The general duty is supported by a series of specific duties in the areas of policy-making, service delivery and employment. They are the basic steps the school must take to meet the general duty. Under the specific duties covering policy and service delivery the school must publish a Race Equality Policy, keep it up to date and assess its impact.

Disability

The Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) 1995 protects people with disabilities from unfair treatment and discrimination. It makes it a duty for employers and service providers to make reasonable adjustments to make their services accessible to people with disabilities.

Definitions are:

Disability:

Part 1 of the Act defines a disabled person as being someone with a 'physical or mental impairment which has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on their ability to carry out normal day-to-day activities'.

Employment provisions:

Part II of the Act contains the employment provisions which apply to employers with 15 or more employees. The provisions, including those that require employers to consider making changes to the physical features of premises that they occupy, have been in force since December 1996.

Access to Goods and Services:

Part III of the Act gives disabled people important rights of access to everyday services that others take for granted. The duties under Part III have come into force in three stages:

- Since December 1996 it has been unlawful to treat a disabled person less favourably because they are disabled.
- Since October 1999, service providers have had to consider making reasonable adjustments to the way they deliver services in order that disabled people can use them
- Since October 2004, service providers have been required to either remove, alter or provide a reasonable way of avoiding physical features that make it impossible or unreasonably difficult for disabled people to use a service.

The 1995 Act was amended by the Disability Discrimination Act 2005, which now places a general duty on public bodies, when undertaking their functions to have due regard to the need to:

- Promote equality of opportunity between disabled persons and other persons
- Eliminate unlawful discrimination
- Eliminate unlawful harassment
- Promote positive attitudes towards disabled persons
- Take steps to take account of disabled persons' disabilities, even where that involves treating disabled persons more favourably than other persons and;
- Encourage participation by disabled persons in public life.

Under the specific duties covering policy and service delivery the school must publish a Disability Equality Policy. These amendments came into effect on the 3rd December 2007.

Gender

The Sex Discrimination Act 1975 makes it unlawful to discriminate against women or men, of any age on the grounds of their sex. The provisions of this Act have been amended by the Sex Discrimination Act 1986, to extend the legislation to small businesses, and the Sex Discrimination (Gender Reassignment) Regulations 1999 in order to include outlawing discrimination against transsexuals and those who claim to have no gender. The Equal Treatment Directive which sets out the European Framework of Equality legislation confirms new regulations which came into force on 1 October 2005. The Equality Act 2006 amends the Sex Discrimination Act 1975 to place a statutory duty on all public authorities, when carrying out their functions, to have due regard to the need to:

- Eliminate unlawful discrimination and harassment
- To promote equality of opportunity between men and women

This is known as the 'general duty' and it came into effect on 6 April 2007. The duty is intended to address the fact that, despite 30 years of individual legal rights to sex equality, there is still widespread discrimination – sometimes intentional, sometimes unintentional – and persistent gender inequality. Policies and practices that seem neutral can often have significantly different effect on women and on men, often contributing to greater inequality and poor policy outcomes.

Age

Under the EU Employment Directive (2000 78 EC) it became illegal to discriminate in employment and vocational training on the grounds of age on October 1 2006.

Sexual Orientation

The Employment Equality (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2003 outlaw discrimination and harassment on grounds of sexual orientation in workplaces in Great Britain, both in the private and public sector. In particular they define sexual orientation as orientation towards the same, the opposite, or both sexes. This means that protection is also afforded to heterosexual people under these regulations. They cover all aspects of the employment relationship including recruitment, pay, working conditions, training, promotion, dismissal and references. (For Catholic Voluntary Aided Schools please refer to Appendix C).

Faith, Religion and Belief

The Employment Equality (Religion or Belief) Regulations 2003 outlaw discrimination and harassment on grounds of religion or belief in workplaces in Great Britain, both in the private and public sector. They cover all aspects of the employment relationship including recruitment, pay, working conditions, training, promotion, dismissal and references. (for Catholic Voluntary Aided schools please refer to Appendix C).

6. Statutory Duties

For some time now schools have had a statutory duty to promote equality in specific areas. These areas are ethnicity, disability, community cohesion and gender. Shortly there will be a statutory duty in respect of gender identity as well.

These duties impose broad obligations on schools to:-

- Eliminate discrimination and harassment
- Incorporate a Gender Equality Scheme into the school's Equality & Diversity Policy Statement
- Have due regard to the promotion of equality of opportunity
- Promote positive attitudes
- Encourage participation by minority and under-representative groups in public life
- Take steps to take account of people's specific needs
- Conduct Impact Assessments

6. Policy Management and Governance

This school promotes positive and proactive approaches to valuing and respecting diversity.

It is committed to encouraging, supporting and enabling all pupils and staff to reach their potential.

The school management will work in partnership with its stakeholders to establish, promote and disseminate equality good practice and tackle discrimination.

Staff, pupils and other stakeholders contribute to the development and review of this Equality and Diversity Policy Statement and the evaluation of the Policy will be used to identify specific actions.

Responsibilities

Governing Body - ensuring that the school complies with the Legislation.
- ensuring that the Policy and its related procedures and strategies are implemented.

Headteacher - implementation of the Policy and its related procedures and strategies
- ensuring all staff are aware of their responsibilities and are given appropriate training and support
- taking appropriate action in any cases of discrimination
- appointing a member of staff (or self) to deal with reported incidents of racism or racial harassment and co-ordinating race equality work

All Staff - promoting equality of opportunity and good relations and not discriminating
- dealing with racist incidents and knowing how to identify and challenge racial bias and stereotyping

Visitors and Contractors being aware of and complying with, the schools' Equality and Diversity Policy

There are three strands that drive our Equality and Diversity Policy:

- Being inclusive - we want to be an 'inclusive' school and employer and to reflect the community we serve
- Enable Access - we want to ensure all our pupils, staff, governors and visitors can access our services
- Involving All - we want to make sure that our communication and our consultation activities are fully inclusive

Staffing: Recruitment, Training and Professional Development

The school adheres to recruitment and selection procedures which are consistent with statutory legislation contained in the six strands.

It will take appropriate steps to encourage people from under represented groups to apply for positions at all levels in school.

Employment and professional development of staff will be monitored using the six strands.

Curriculum

Curriculum planning takes account of the ethnicity, backgrounds and needs of pupils. Its effectiveness in providing an appropriate curriculum for all pupils is evaluated by its monitoring procedures.

Each area of the curriculum is planned to incorporate the principles of equality and to promote positive attitudes to diversity. All subjects contribute to the spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of all pupils.

The content of the curriculum reflects and values diversity. It encourages pupils to explore bias and to challenge prejudice and stereotypes.

Extra curricular activities and special events cater for the needs and capabilities of all pupils and take account of parental concerns related to religion and culture.

Teaching and Learning

Teachers ensure that the classroom is an inclusive environment in which pupils feel all their contributions are valued.

All pupils have access to the mainstream curriculum.

Teaching is responsive to pupils' different learning styles and takes account of pupils' cultural background and linguistic needs.

Teachers take positive steps to include all groups or individuals.

Pupil grouping in the classroom is planned and varied. Allocations to teaching groups are kept under continual review and are analysed by ethnicity, gender and background.

Assessment, Pupil Achievement and Progress

All pupils have the opportunity to achieve their highest standards. Baseline assessment is used appropriately for all pupils. The school ensures that assessment is free of gender, cultural and social bias, and that assessment methods are valid.

The monitoring and analysis of pupil performance by gender, ethnicity and background enables the identification of groups of pupils where there are patterns of underachievement. The school ensures that action is taken to counter this.

Staff have high expectations of all pupils and they continually challenge them to extend their learning and achieve higher standards. The school recognises and values all forms of achievement.

Self-assessment provides all pupils with opportunities to take responsibility for their own learning through regular reflection and feedback on their progress.

All pupils have full opportunities to demonstrate what they know, understand and can do and therefore to benefit from assessment which summarises what they have learnt. Information from assessment is used to inform future learning.

Staff use a range of methods and strategies to assess pupils' progress.

Admission, Attendance, Discipline and Exclusion

Active steps are taken to ensure that all the Admission process is fair and equitable.

The school monitors pupils' attendance by ethnic group and gender and uses the data to develop strategies to address poor attendance.

Provision is made for pupils to take time off for religious observations.

Discipline and exclusions are monitored by gender, ethnicity and background and action is taken in order to reduce any disparities between different groups of pupils.

The school's procedures for disciplining pupils and managing behaviour are fair and applied equally to all.

Pupils – Personal Development, Attainment, Progress and Pastoral Care

Pupils' attainment and progress in individual subjects are monitored by ethnic groups and the school develops strategies for tackling unjustified disparities in the attainment and progress of particular ethnic groups as appropriate.

Pastoral support takes account of religious and ethnic differences.

Appropriate support is provided for any pupils learning English as an additional language.

All pupils have equal access to extra-curricular activities.

Parents/Carers, Governors and Community Stakeholders

Progress reports to parents/carers are accessible and appropriate, in order to ensure that all parents/carers have the opportunity to participate in the dialogue.

All parents/carers are encouraged to participate at all levels in the full life of the school.

The school works in partnership with parents/carers and the community to develop positive attitudes to equality and diversity and to address specific incidents.

The school's premises and facilities are equally available and accessible for use by all groups within the community.

The school is striving to make links with minority ethnic community groups.

7. Equality Impact Assessment Activity

The school is committed to an ongoing programme of impact assessments on existing new policies.

Our approach will be to apply one impact assessment process to cover all six strands to ensure that we come to a rounded view, and that by altering our policy or practice to address the equality issues of one strand, we do not disadvantage another.

8. Action Plans – Implementing the Policy

The Equality and Diversity Policy will raise a number of issues which the school needs to address. This will be done through an Action Plan which will cover all six strands.

The Action Plan will show how the Policy will be practically implemented. It will be part of the school's Development Plan.

Appendix A is a Check List to help you gather information in order for you to draw up Equality and Diversity Action Plans. The Action Plans will help you identify goals and show the actions required to achieve them.

9. Legal Definitions

Adverse Impact

Adverse impact is the extent to which a policy disadvantages one or more target group.

Direct Discrimination

This means treating a person less favourably than others are, or would be, treated on the grounds of ethnicity, gender/gender identity, marital status, age, religion and belief, sexual orientation or disability.

Harassment

This is any unwanted conduct, which affects the dignity of all individuals regardless of ethnicity, gender or disability. It includes unwelcome physical, verbal and non-verbal conduct. It may consist of a single incident or a pattern of unwelcome behaviour and can be directed at more than one person. It could even constitute a criminal offence.

Indirect Discrimination

This means imposing a requirement or condition, which applies equally to everyone but is such that a proportion of people in a particular group who are able to comply with the requirement is considerably smaller than that in other groups.

Institutional Discrimination

“The collective failure of an organisation to provide appropriate and professional service to people because of their colour, culture or ethnic origin. It can be seen or detected in processes, attitudes and behaviour which amount to discrimination through unwitting prejudice, ignorance, thoughtlessness, and racist stereotyping which disadvantages minority ethnic people.” (Macpherson Report – Stephen Lawrence Inquiry)

Macpherson’s Report led to the first public duty – Race Equality – and was the driving force behind the subsequent duties on disability and gender.

Multiple Discrimination

This occurs when, for more than one reason, a person is treated less favourably than others with those characteristics in the same or similar circumstance, unless there is an objective reason for doing so. An example would be an ethnic minority, female, wheelchair user, who could be treated less favourably for a combination of these reasons simultaneously. In this example all three forms of discrimination are unlawful in their own right.

Positive Action

Positive Action means the deliberate introduction of measures to eliminate or reduce discrimination. There are several different kinds of Positive Action, encompassing the following three areas:

1. Action which reveals potential discriminatory policies and practice through, for example, assessing the impact of policies, or monitoring.
2. Action which changes discriminatory policies and practice in light of findings. This could include changing the procedures for awarding promotion, if there was evidence suggesting the current system was discriminatory.

These types of Positive Action are legislated for under the Race Relations (Amendment) Act, the Disability Discrimination Act and the Gender Equality Duty.

The third kind of Positive Action is:

3. Action which attempts to counter-balance the under-representation or under-achievement of a particular group.

This is most controversial and most misunderstood type of Positive Action and has been interpreted by some as leading to the implementation of discriminatory practices.

What Positive Action is not:

Positive Action does not involve discriminating against a group or groups of people. Treating individuals from one group more favourably than individuals from another is positive discrimination and is unlawful. An example of unlawful positive discrimination is the use of quotas for determining the number of people from a particular background to be employed. It is important to distinguish 'quotas' from the setting of targets. Targets are about aspirational benchmarks that can be used as success indicators.

What is 'More Favourable Treatment?'

More favourable treatment underpins the Disability Equality Duty and provides explicit recognition of the fact that equality of opportunity for disabled people cannot be achieved by simply treating disabled and non-disabled people alike.

Positive Equality Duties

Positive Equality duties are set out in a number of pieces of legislation but can be summarised as the need to:

- Promote equality of opportunity between different groups (men and women, people with and without disabilities, people of different ethnic groups, etc).
- Promote good relations between people of different ethnic groups.
- Promote positive attitudes towards people from different groups.
- Encourage the participation of people from different groups in public life.
- Take account of disabled persons' disabilities, even where that involves treating disabled persons more favourably than other persons.

Positive Impact

A positive impact is one that could benefit one or more target groups, or improve equality of opportunity or the relationship between the groups.

Pressure to discriminate

It is unlawful for a person with authority or influence over another to induce them to discriminate, or to put pressure (directly or indirectly) on another person to discriminate.

Racist Incident

"Any incident, which is perceived to be racist by the victim or any other person."
Macpherson Report – Stephen Lawrence Inquiry.

Vicarious Liability

Employers are responsible for the discriminatory actions of their employees where such actions have been carried out during the course of their duties. The only defence for employers is to show that they have done everything reasonably practicable to prevent an employee committing an unlawful act.

In practice, courts and tribunals have regarded the following as 'reasonable steps':

- Publishing a comprehensive equal opportunities policy.
- Clearly communicating the policy to all staff.
- Providing awareness training on the potential for, and implications of, discrimination.

Training staff in good practice relevant to their jobs (e.g. recruitment, record keeping, monitoring and adopting accepted codes of practice in relation to employment, etc).

EMPLOYMENT EQUALITY (RELIGION AND BELIEF)
REGULATIONS 2003

The following has been supplied by the Diocese of Shrewsbury Education Service in respect of Catholic Voluntary Aided Schools.

The above Regulations do not diminish the rights of a Governing Body in a Voluntary Aided School under 60(5) School Standards and Framework Act 1998 to give preference, in connection with the appointment, remuneration or promotion of teachers at the school, to persons:

- (i) whose religious opinions are in accordance with the tenets of the religion or religious denomination of the school, or
- (ii) who attend religious worship in accordance with those tenets, or
- (iii) who give, or are willing to give, religious education at the school in accordance with those tenets.

Similarly, regard may continue to be had, in accordance with Section 60(5)(b), in connection with the termination of the employment of any teacher at the school, to any conduct on his/her part which is incompatible with the precepts, or with the upholding of the tenets, of the religion or religious denomination of the school.

Further there are circumstances in which it is a genuine occupational requirement in Catholic schools that a post be filled by a Catholic and the Regulations make specific provision for those employers who have an ethos based on religion or belief. Catholic Voluntary Aided schools fall within this definition. Regulation 7(3) states:

“This paragraph applies where an employer has an ethos based on religion or belief and, having regard to that ethos and to the nature of the employment or the context in which it is carried out-

- (a) being of a particular religion or belief is a genuine occupational requirement for the job;
- (b) it is appropriate to apply that requirement in the particular case; and
- (c) either:
 - (i) the person to whom that requirement is applied does not meet it, or
 - (ii) the employer is not satisfied, and in all circumstances it is reasonable for him not to be satisfied, that the person meets it”.

The categories of posts in a Catholic school or College for which it is a genuine occupational requirement that the postholder be Catholic include Leadership Group posts, Religious Education posts, Chaplaincy posts and roles with a strong pastoral and spiritual element.

Whilst this legislation originally defined the preferential status that Governing Bodies in Catholic schools may accord to teaching staff, the Education and Inspections Act has now extended this to all staff in Catholic Voluntary Aided schools. The rationale for this is that the distinction between the roles of qualified teachers and those who carry out other functions in Catholic schools has been blurred by workforce reform.
